

ABSTRACT

The present invention includes a mobile telephone having a radio transmit/receive function, and a control unit 109 that detects key input operations by a user, and has the 5 mobile telephone transmit an emergency notification message to a predetermined address stored in a storage unit 112 when notified by a timer unit 111 that a preset period has elapsed since a key input operation was last detected.